

I'd like to formally complain about the content of the Oprah Winfrey show I witnessed. The subject of this particular episode was "sex slang". I feel that if broadcasters are going to be limited in what they can say in public broadcasts then why is Oprah Winfrey, her broadcasting company and affiliates allowed to broadcast this material. If the Fcc is going to dictate and regulate what I can and cannot listen to or see then I would like to see her and her parent company suffer the same and infinity broadcasting and clear channel.
